Fair, Colder Tonight and Tomorrow

Thomas G. Hensey, sixty-seven years old, a business man of this city and a civil war voteran, lies at the point of death in a ward of the Emergency Hospital this afternoon. He was attacked suddenly with cerebral hemorrhage yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock while walking along the street and was removed to the hospital at once and soon after lost consciousness. He has not regained his mental faculties

The end has been expected for several hours, and at the middle of the afternoon it was stated by both the family physician and the physicians at the hospital that death was but a question of a few hours at the most. Mr. Hensey left his home, 1759 Columbia road, yesterday morning in apparent good health and, as usual, went to his office in the Colorado building to take up the labors of the day. For his age he was a very active man. It was noticed that he was busy all day yesterday. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon he left his office on some some business on E street. He was walking slowly in front of the store at 1208 E street, when he was suddenly over-come by an attack of filness and he sank to the sidewalk in his weakness.

Could Not Rise.

Pedestrians who were passing along the street at the time rushed to his aid and tried to get him to his feet. But it was useless and Policeman Messer of the first precinct was called. He summoned the wagon of the first precinct and Mr. Hensey was rapidly conveyed to the Emergency Hospital. He was still able to talk rationally, but the first examination at the hos-pital, it is declared, showed that the fil-ness was very serious.

His family was notified promptly, through the police, and Mrs. Hensey hastened to her husband's side. She has kept up an untir-ing vigil since reaching the hospital, and she refuses to leave the room on any pretext. His two sons, Alexander T. Hensey and Melville D. Hensey, have also been with their father and mother at the hospital much of the time during last night and today. His other two sons, Wa'ter R. and George N. Hensey, who live in New York, have also been notified of their father's condition.

"My father is fighting for his life," said Alexander Hensey to a Star reporter this morning. "And we are hoping against

Mr. Hensey has been prominent in the bus ness affairs of Washington for twentyfive or thirty years, engaging in a real estate and insurance business. For eighteen years he was located at the corner of 13.11 and F streets northwest, and it was there that he built up the business in which he has been so successful. He has been identifled with many of the real estate booms of the city and much of the city's growth in the past quarter of a century.

He was an officer in the war of the rebellion, serving through much of the struggle. He has been identified with the Loyal Legion in Washington for a number of years. He was at one time a member of the board of directors of the Business Men's Association, and was active in the Board of Trade. He is a member of Lafayette Lodge, No. 19, F. A. A. M. During his residence in this city Mr. Hensey has been a strong advocate of suffrage for the people of the District and worked hard for that with Dr. Reyburn and others.

with assault on Catherine Rasher, August 27 last, heard in the Police Court today, a While Catherine Racher, who keeps a small store at 421 K street northwest, was waiting for customers August 27 last, Charles Harris, a burly colored man, walked into the store. He demanded some money, it is alleged, from the woman. When she refused he grasped her around the neck, it is alleged, and began choking her severely. She resisted as well as her feeble strength permitted and screamed as loud as she could. While Harris was still the strength permitted and screamed as loud as the could. struggling with her, it is stated, neighbors were attracted by the screams and rushed to her aid. They separated the couple and Harris then made his escape. Policeman McQuade of the second pre-

He stated that it is as contagious as smallpox and attacks peach and plum trees alike. California, Michigan,

ST. JOHN'S ANNIVERSARY. Georgetown Church One Hundred and Ten Years Old. Arrangements have been made to celebrate the one hundred and tenth anniversary of the foundation of the St. John's Episcopal Church, Georgetown, tomorrow. A special musical service has been arranged for the evening at 7:30 o'clock, at which Rev. Dr. Randolph H. McKim will preach on "Three Hundred Years of English Christianity in America." The choir, under the direction of Rev. G. C. Galand, choirmaster, will render the cantata, "Seed Time and Harvest," by John C. West, St. John's Church, which was founded in 1796, is said to be the second oldest church in this city, Christ Church, near the navy yard, having been founded one year before. Although the walls and foundation were completed until 1806, when Rev. J. J. Sayrs became its rector. President Jefferson's name appears among the list of those who name appears among the list of those who subscribed funds for this work. In 1811 the congregation became so large that the vestry decided to enlarge the church. Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star Spangled Banner," was a member of the vestry at this time. While holding this office he placed a tablet in the church to the memory of its first rector. This tablet, bearing the famous author's inscription, is still in the possess on of the church. In 1831 the congregation became so small that 1831 the congregation became so small that the church was abandoned, and received the name of "Swallow Barn," until eight years later, when it was reopened.
